

Nature of this report.

The work done during the consultancy was of three types:

1. Analysing the IT needs of the Unify courses and the options available to the project
2. Producing and adapting computer-based material to match these needs and recommendations as to the selection of options
3. Training members of the Unify teams in the use of specific software packages.

Because of this, most of the material produced and used during the consultancy is computer-based. It is also very extensive - approximately 70MB in total. It seemed therefore that the only viable way of documenting and communicating this material in a report was for that report itself to be computer-based. Therefore this report consists of a series of web-pages which list and link to materials:

- Produced in advance of the visit
- Written during the visit (including the two presentations)
- Brought from the UK and (sometimes in adapted form) left on the computer systems of the Unify course.

The written report consists of an account of the context, terms of reference and timetable of activities.